Grinnell College Protesters

To the Editor:

Several Grinnell College students picketed a representative of the CIA while he was on campus for job interviews.

Many Iowans may feel Grinnell is a good school but it unfortunately has a large number of "protesters," "reformers," and just plain "beatniks." We do, and we are proud of it. Would Iowans rather send their children to a college where the same beliefs are held by all the students and no one ever dissents?

What we are against is the way certain news articles imply that a majority of the student body is for action like getting out of Viet Nam or castigating the actions of the CIA. By not mentioning in these articles how the majority of the students feel on any issue under question, many people assume that we all agree with a dissident group's action. We don't. — Jeffrey W.
